- 3 Where did Miri put the new errand pad, and what did she write on it?

Read each sentence. Circle Fact if the story shows it for sure.
Circle Guess if it is only an idea someone has.

Write one fact and one guess from your own day.

3 Think and write

Write what is true for you, or write about a made-up person. You do not have to share anything private.

- 1 What was the difference between Miri's rule about drawing and collecting the napkins late?

- 2 Why didn't the late collection change the inconvenience on Sunday?

- 3 Invent a character who misses a safe, ordinary responsibility. Write a useful repair and a practical reminder. Avoid punishments or private real-life examples.

6 Say it out loud

Practice these out loud, or whisper them. Then write what you would say in your own words.

- 1 "I'm sorry I didn't do what I agreed to do. What still needs doing?"

- 2 "I need to tell you I haven't managed it yet."

- 3 "I can change my reminder without taking away something I enjoy."

7 My chart

Use safe, ordinary examples. Repair does not guarantee that another person will stop feeling disappointed. If guilt or problems remembering keep interfering with a character's day, include help from a trusted adult rather than harsher self-punishment.

An invented missed responsibility	What can still be repaired	What cannot be changed now	A reminder or support to try

8 Draw it

Draw the high shelf, the pencils back on the desk, the apple drawing, and the kitchen pad. Caption which object helps Miri remember an errand. No people needed.

Remember the story

Miri made her own no-drawing rule because she hoped losing an enjoyable activity would make her remember responsibilities. She forgot the paper napkins. The pad hung on an existing hook beside the kitchen doorway, with a pencil through its spiral. It listed errands she had agreed to do and when they needed doing.
